About Our Gelato

Each morning, we start the day with fresh cage-free eggs, milk and cream. We add fresh fruits, nuts, chocolates and other all-natural ingredients to make, what we believe to be, America's best gelato and sorbetto. In comparison, 99% of the gelato and ice cream made in the U.S. is produced with pre-made mixes containing artificial ingredients using the "cold process" method, which is faster and less expensive. We use the more time consuming "hot process" of production. To explain, the "hot process" involves mixing ingredients at extremely high temperatures, creating a more homogenized mixture with more depth of flavor. We repeat this process by "Double Pasteurizing" each batch. The next step is freezing; when freezing gelato from a heated state, smaller frozen crystals are produced than when it is frozen from a cold state. This reduces crystallization and produces a smoother, more dense and creamier gelato. Some of our secrets:

- Our exclusive all-natural process
- We double pasteurize every gelato batch
- Only "clean label" ingredients
- Old World hot process method of production
- Homogenized at high-temp for depth of flavor
- 100% natural stabilizers for the creamiest texture
- Produced with lower amounts of fat and sugar
- Infinitely recyclable & reusable containers
- Most environmentally friendly packaging materials

As far as the sorbettoes go, our customers can't believe these delicious, creamy and smooth treats are 100% dairy free.

Our Environmentally Friendly Packaging

Gemma distributes its gelato in aluminum screw-top containers. Our packaging is the most environmentally friendly of all packaging materials. Aluminum is not only the most abundant metal on earth, but it is essentially 100% recyclable. There is no loss of material or quality when aluminum is recycled. Instead of ending up in a landfill, our containers get recycled, while using only 5% of the energy used to generate it. In as little as sixty days our aluminum containers go from the recycle bin to new packaging on your store's shelves.

As an alternative, our containers may be machine washed and reused as storage or other functional purposes if not recycled. Our insulated shipping boxes are also completely recyclable.
